Gas safety for campers

The Easter break and school holidays are a wonderful opportunity to spend time with family and friends, so what could be better than a camping trip in our great State?

The range of creature comforts you can take on the road with you – like portable gas cookers, heaters, fridges and barbecues – means there's no need to rough it. It's just important to take a few simple steps to ensure everyone stays safe.

Portable gas appliances are safe to use, as long as they are in good condition and operated correctly. The number one tip from WA's gas safety regulator, Building and Energy, is to never use these appliances inside tents, caravans or other enclosed spaces, even if the doors or windows are open. Portable gas appliances need a lot of air to burn cleanly and efficiently. If the appliances are not used outdoors in the open air, carbon monoxide can build up and, worryingly, because this potentially lethal gas is colourless and odourless, you may not even be aware you've been exposed until it's too late. It's sometimes called the "invisible killer".

Symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning include headaches, dizziness, weakness, nausea and confusion. If you experience these, try to move to a well-ventilated area and seek medical attention immediately.

Remember, portable gas appliances are great outdoors, but potentially lethal indoors. If you are purchasing a new appliance, make sure it carries a compliance badge that shows it has been approved for sale in Australia. When you install or set it up, always follow the manufacturer's instructions and take note of any safety warnings.

It's important to know that two types of LPG cylinder and appliance connections are now available. The older Type 21 (POL) is being phased out in favour of a safer design called LCC27.

Older Type 21 (POL) gas appliance connectors can be used with either cylinder type, but new gas appliances purchased since April 2022 must only be connected to an LCC27 gas cylinder. If you try to connect an LCC27 appliance to a Type 21 (POL) cylinder, it can cause gas to leak.

People have suffered serious burns after using incompatible cylinders and connectors with their barbecue. Adapters have also been banned for safety reasons.

Building and Energy also recommend having gas appliances serviced regularly by a licensed gas fitter and checking the equipment before use. Your LPG cylinder should be in good condition and its most recent test date should be within the past 10 years. If not, the cylinder should be replaced.

A soapy water test can detect gas leaks. Apply soapy water to the cylinder, hose and appliance connections. Open the cylinder valve, but don't turn on the appliance. Bubbles or gas smells can indicate a leak. Turn the cylinder valve off immediately and don't use it until the leak is fixed.

During travel, transport cylinders in an upright position, secured firmly and outside the passenger area. Don't carry cylinders in the car boot or any unventilated space for extended periods.

More information, including a handy brochure on Camping Safely with LP Gas is available at the Building and Energy website (wa.gov.au/organisation/building-and-energy)

Happy Easter and safe travels!

As such, the majority of the Strategy's 93 recommendations apply to the Mid West and other regions. It is expected that the unique circumstances of each region are taken into account when implementing recommendations.

Mobilising young women and gender diverse people to transform policy and politics towards equitable democracy.

Our background

Founded in 2020, Raise Our Voice Australia (ROVA) is a non-partisan volunteer-run social enterprise mobilising young women and gender diverse people to transform policy and politics.

Introducing the Forfeit Campaign

Imagine a future where young women and gender-diverse people have their voices not just heard but acted on in shaping our nation's direction. The Forfeit Campaign is a bold initiative leading into the 2025 election, spotlighting the priorities and ideas of young women and gender-diverse people, which are so often unheard, and having active conversations about the issues this cohort cares about, in partnership with organisations leading this work.

We're creating a platform where young people can share what they care about most—whether it's climate action, equality, or safer communities—and inviting voters to pledge their support for a future that prioritises these voices. Through powerful storytelling, data-driven insights, and partnerships with gender equality advocates, we're sparking a national conversation about intergenerational fairness, and gender equality in politics and political discourse.

This isn't just a campaign; it's a movement to reshape our democracy, where every pledge, story, and idea builds a stronger, more inclusive future. Will you join us in making sure we don't forfeit this chance for real change?

When and where to look:

Look towards the eastern horizon from 5am on 25th April. The view will add to the poignancy of this very special morning.

Dawn on Anzac Day this year is extra special. If you regularly attend dawn services, you'll know that the view of the stars and planets change from year to year. This year, there are three naked-eye planets visible in a conjunction with a beautiful waning crescent Moon. A conjunction is where two astronomical objects, like planets, appear close together in the sky. Venus is the brightest to the left of the moon, Saturn is to the right and further towards the horizon is Mercury. Over coming weeks you'll see them appear to move away from each other. If you watch regularly, you'll be marveling at the motion of our amazing solar system. Use the above image as a guide. Astronomical images provided by SkySafari, a Simulation Curriculum Company, All rights reserved www.simulationcurriculum.com.

Venus was once thought to be a tropical paradise! Astronomers from hundreds of years ago believed that due to the presence of an atmosphere, and the fact that Venus is closer to the Sun than the Earth, Venus would experience conditions similar to the equatorial regions of Earth. Today, we know this is far from true, with the average surface temperature of Venus reaching over 450 degrees Celsius and occasional bouts of acid rain!

MELISSA PRICE

FEDERAL MEMBER FOR DURACK

9 April 2025

An elected Dutton Liberal Government will reinstate the 80:20 federal funding model for nationally significant road projects in regional and remote Australia, ensuring more roads and highways across Durack receive the investment they need.

Liberal Member for Durack, Melissa Price MP, said regional WA had missed out due to the Albanese Labor Government's decision to slash funding for regional road projects by 30 per cent.

"While country roads across Durack - from the Kimberley to the Wheatbelt - have been deteriorating, the Albanese Labor Government has cut or delayed more than $30 billion in infrastructure projects and abolished key programs like the Bridges Renewal and Roads of Strategic Importance," Ms Price said.

"Only a Liberal Government will stand up for regional Western Australians. Around 600,000 people live outside Perth, and they deserve their fair share of infrastructure funding. That's why we will restore the 80 per cent Commonwealth contribution from day one."

Labor's cuts mean critical freight and tourism routes across Durack will continue to miss out on the upgrades needed to support safety, productivity and growth.

"Regional roads are far less safe than those in our cities. People in the bush are five times more likely to die in a road crash," Ms Price said.

"The Labor Government ignored expert warnings that scrapping the 80:20 model would reduce investment in regional roads, and that's exactly what we've seen."

Ms Price said restoring the 80:20 funding split would encourage state investment and deliver long-overdue upgrades across Durack.

"Whether it's farmers, freight operators, or families driving hours to see loved ones, regional Australians deserve safer roads. In Durack, long drives are a part of life. Reliable, well-maintained roads are essential for safety, food security and emergency responders. Without proper investment, we are leaving WA's north exposed."

This critical investment, along with the game-changing fuel excise tax cut is part of the Liberals' plan to grow the economy, strengthen our domestic supply chains, and get Australia back on track.

ENDS.
